DISTRICT No. 1.

Summer Term. Order, discipline and method of instruction, good, and consequently the scholars made a creditable improvement.

Winter Term. We found this school in charge of a very smart working teacher, and the scholars showed a thoroughness of discipline which is seldom seen. We heard some of the best reading here that we ever heard in any school. We understood that some of the scholars had been unruly, but prompt and decisive action on the part of the teacher had preserved the order of the school.

DISTRICT No. 2.

Summer Term. School appeared well at examination, and we should judge that the scholars made a fair improvement.

Winter Term. Reading and writing had not received as much attention and care as we desire; but in other branches a fair improvement had been made.

DISTRICT No. 3.

Summer Term. The scholars appeared to have made a creditable improvement, and on examination day this was certainly a model school. The order was equal to military discipline.

Winter Term. Mr. Hall was quite successful in this school. The deportment was fair, and the scholars who attended regular, made a fair proficiency in their studies; but irregular attendance was seriously detrimental to the progress of the school.

DISTRICT No. 4.

Winter Term. This school at both our visits appeared well; the order was excellent, and a good improvement was made in all the branches of study pursued. Miss Wilson is an excellent teacher for one who has had no more experience. This was her second school.

DISTRICT No. 5.

Summer Term. Order, excellent, and a very good improvement made.

Winter Term. At our first visit the school appeared well, with the exception of a few large scholars, who were not so orderly as they ought to have been; and also at the closing examination, the school was not so quiet as is desirable; but a creditable improvement was made by most of the scholars. Miss Leighton is an experienced teacher and labored hard for the improvement of this school.

DISTRICT No. 6.

Winter Term. We found this school in a prosperous condition, and the closing examination showed good improvement in the various branches of learning pursued. Much credit is due to the scholars of this school for the care which they take of their school house, outline maps, books and other school property.

DISTRICT No. 7.

Summer Term. This school appeared well at the commencement; but as we were unable to visit it at the close, we cannot speak of its improvement from personal knowledge.

Winter Term. At our first visit this school appeared well; the teacher and scholars manifested a lively interest in their labors. On account of bad traveling the attendance was small at the close; but the scholars who were present passed a good examination, and we believe that it was a profitable school.

DISTRICT No. 8.

Winter Term. We are satisfied that Mr. Orne taught a good school in this district. The school was orderly and respectful; and at examination a good improvement was manifested.

We found some scholars in this school as good as any in town.

DISTRICT No. 9.

Winter Term. We were much pleased with this school at the commencement. The order was good, the classes well arranged, and it bid fair to be a pleasant and profitable term: but some of the scholars became disorderly, and the committee were called in to investigate the trouble. They found the scholars in fault, but on promise of good conduct in future, they were permitted to continue in school; but we learn that some of them left before the school closed. The school passed a good examination, and we have no doubt but that it was a profitable term to those who attended regularly to the end; for we found some very good scholars here. We were pleased to see so many of the parents show their interest by their presence on examination day.

DISTRICT No. 10.

Summer Term. We found this school badly classed and the teacher consequently laboring under a great disadvantage, and gave instruction how to remedy the difficulty; but at the close we found that our advice had been unheeded, and also that the order and discipline had been very poor; and the school consequently unprofitable.

Winter Term. The school appeared well at the commencement, but soon after, some of the large scholars became unruly, and their conduct was a great injury to the school. We believe that the teacher labored hard to have good order and a good school, and we think she did well considering what she had to contend with. A number of large scholars were absent at examination, but those who were present acquitted themselves with credit to themselves and their teacher.

DISTRICT No. 11.

Winter Term. We cannot speak particularly of the merits of this school as we visited it but once. The order was good—it appeared well; and we have no doubt but that it was a profitable school.

DISTRICT No. 12.

Summer Term. The school appeared well and made a fair improvement.

Winter Term. A creditable improvement was made, especially in arithmetic. Order was good, and we consider that the time and money have been profitably spent.

GENERAL REMARKS.

With the exception of the house in No. 2 (where a new one is much needed), we have a set of good and convenient school houses throughout the town.

It is often better to employ good female teachers in our winter schools than poor male teachers; but the experience of the past winter has taught us, that in some of our winter schools, particularly in Nos. 5, 9 and 10, a little more physical power is needed than females ordinarily possess.

While it is a matter of rejoicing that our schools generally are in so prosperous a condition, it should not be forgotten that much remains to be done. The work of improvement should go on in every department of our Educational system. But to effect this the citizens generally must be more interested. The teachers need more than they receive of their co-operation and support. In almost every thing the child's interest corresponds to, and may be fathomed by, the interest manifested by the parent. And what would more naturally manifest the interest of parents in their schools than going frequently to the school room and observing for themselves what their children, and the servants whom they have employed there with them are doing? Also, regularity of attendance deserves to be more strenuously sought. Our schools are very short; and then the schools are so arranged and made to move along together in classes, with so much dependence on every lesson to aid them in acquiring the next, that loss of time by absence is like the loss of rounds in a ladder,—it makes it hard to ascend; if too many are gone, all progress is stopped.

A few lessons lost, especially in the discussion of rules and principles, rarely fail to cripple the scholar for the whole term afterwards.

In conclusion, we would express the hope that our public schools may receive a larger share of the attention of the whole community. The school children of to-day will soon control the destinies of the nation; so our ark of safety is the common school, so conducted as to fulfill its highest and noblest purposes.
