An increase in the number of out poor and insane during the year, has incurred additional expense. April 18th, Henry M. Tolman was committed to the hospital, and Orrin M. Libby, under date July 4th. Libby being discharged in December, leaves us with three patients. In his communication to us, date of Feb. 15, Dr. Sanborn says that Tolman has improved somewhat, but that none of our patients are hopeful so far as future recovery is concerned.

The price of board of N. Stewart has been reduced to $2 per week.

School Report.

Fellow Citizens of Falmouth :

Another year has come and gone, and it becomes no less our duty than our pleasure to present to you, parents and citizens, the customary annual report. In doing this, we do not propose to enter into tedious details regarding the management and success of the separate schools in each of the twelve districts of our charge, but to give instead a brief glance around the entire field.

Although there have been some faults in the schools for the year just ending, yet perhaps we have no special reason to be dissatisfied, as this ever has and ever will be the case. Most of the schools have been visited twice each term, and all school work carefully noted. At the first visit, if defects in methods of teaching and government were observed, suggestions were made which we thought would improve the schools. In most cases the suggestions were followed with happiest results. At the second visit we examined them on the studies they had pursued. In many cases great improvement was apparent. Some of our schools are taking high rank in scholarship, particularly those in Nos. 7 and 5. As a general thing the teachers have worked hard and faithfully, and in the right direction. Many have realized the importance of their work and have shown an interest in it; but notwithstanding their efforts much of their work has been unsatisfactory since there have been many evils over which they had no control.

From our observation in noting the success of schools, we find that it depends mainly upon three conditions; first, a suitable person to govern and instruct; second, punctual attendance of the scholars, and last, the hearty co-operation of the parents with the teacher in enforcing such wholesome rules and regulations as are absolutely necessary to accomplish desired results. The opinion of the parent has a great influence over the pupil.

Let no parent be too hasty in judging of the qualifications of a teacher, if he does not do just as he thinks should be done, for unwise remarks, thoughtlessly uttered, have not only injured, but destroyed the influence of many schools; let all strive to improve them. Faultfinding never was known to make a school any better. Assist your teachers in sustaining good order, for without it the school cannot make good progress. A large percentage of our school money is lost, because our scholars fail to attend regularly.

The remedy for the evil lies almost wholly with the parents. Let the parents manifest a practical interest by visiting the schools. Your money supports them, and your children are the scholars—the children you love and to whom you look for the fulfillment of your fondly cherished hopes—the children who are to represent you, and grow up after you, to be your glory or your shame. Neglect no duty that they require. To elevate our schools to that high degree of excellence which we wish them to attain, can be effected, we think, only by the earnest co-operation of parents, teachers, pupils and school officers.

We express the hope that we shall see such co-operation, all striving for a common object,—the education of the youth, their elevation physically, intellectually and morally.

A few words in regard to the text-books. They impose new duties upon both committee and teacher, and in inspecting them some delicate decisions must sometimes be made which may not always be satisfactory to parties concerned. In looking them over we find the books to be in very good condition, clean and nicely kept, with the exception of one or two districts. We would urge upon parents the necessity of teaching their children to be careful and tidy in their handling and use of the books, thereby saving worry and expense. Finally, we commend our schools to the wise, generous regard of the people. They are our hope, as they should be the pride of our town. In them is the germ of all true progress.

Respectfully submitted,
